Dear Friends and Supporters of Partnering for Progress,

The new year has brought significant, positive changes in P4P's role in the Kopanga community. A goal has been to meet the medical needs of this impoverished community. The building of a new clinic, thousands of volunteer hours in-country and at home, thousands of dollars of medical supplies, and generous donations and fundraising have helped us reach this goal.

Our involvement with the Comprehensive Rural Health Project has moved in a new direction and CRHP now operates independently without financial support from P4P. With this change we continue to value our relationships that have grown over the years with staff and community and will always appreciate these partnerships and friendships.

We continue our commitment to improve access to health care, clean water and education to those living in developing countries, particularly in the Kopanga area. In the five years P4P has been in Kenya, we have developed strong relationships with Kopanga leaders, other non-governmental organizations, orphanage administrators, educators, church leaders and other health groups. We believe that by strengthening partnerships with these leaders, organizations and the several health clinics in the area, we can join them in tackling serious health and education issues that plague this region.

P4P's in-country project administrator, Seth Okumu, has been meeting with community leaders for nearly a year, and he will submit the findings from the community needs assessment to us by mid March. Seth's findings and recommendations, combined with our own experiences and knowledge, will guide our organization's future. We are excited for and invigorated by these expanded opportunities.

Wishing you a healthy and peaceful new year,

Partnering for Progress Board of Directors
